MME. BERNHARDT DESCRIBES HER "CRAZIEST" TOUR.

"IntoWhat Unheard-Of Places Did I Drag the Muse?" She Says.

TORNADO WAS CLIMAX.

Despite Hardships Great Actress Admires Our Golden West and "Wonderful Texans."

By A. P. Terhune.

"It was the craziest trip ever made since trip" were invented!" Sme. Safah Bernhardt had just struck New York, and sat enthroned in her victoria, surrounded by a frenzied fringe of maids, footmen, secretaries and other attendants.

Her maitre d'hotel-a weird, little gray Italian named Antonio, who lives in a state of perennial fury-had just assured us tearfully that "madame was sleeping after the fatigues of her terrible journey." when madame herself appeared en route to her carriage, and graciously gave audience from that point of vantage.

"The craziest crip on record," she re iterated. "Crazy, but magnificent. As you know, it was to be my farewell tour of America, and I wished it to be complete. Then there was the crouble about theatres to add a charm of piquancy

Where She Dragged the Muse.

"Ma fol, into what unheard of places have I not dragged the Muse since last I was in New York! I have acted in tents, in tabernacles, in city halls, in roller skate domiciles, in assembly rooms-less in theatres than anywhere

"But what would you? Art is art, whether in the Theatre Francaise or under canvas-hein?"

When Madame says "Heln?" it sounds like the mew of an apotheosized kilten begging aunission to the pearly gates. It is untranslatable.

"That tour equalled in distance the whole circumference of the earth, plus one-half," she resumed, "and I went through one hundred and forty-seven towns. I recollected these statistics just for the papers. I played to-oh, you prefer amusing or odd experiences to

"Well. I had plenty of them in Oakland-in the earthquake lands-you read about that earthquake? In Oakland one of the walls had fallen out of the building where I was to play They propped up the ceiling, and I gave the performance Ah,, but it was droll-but terrible tool-that audience sitting there between the stage and the gaping side of the house! Those people who had lost home, friends, wealth and yet who could throng to the theatre.

Helped Forget Disaster. Helped Forget Disaster.

"They have come to me that I may help them for the moment to forget!" I told myself all that evening long, and I was happy to help them.
"Then one night, I was giving Camille in a tent—a great big tent—in Texas. The place was lammed. Some of my audience were dressed like. Boulevardiers; but others carried huge has and were sourced. Many had Business expanded considerably toward noon and there was a good manifestation of strength despite continuous realizing in Reading. St. Paul and Union Pacific, which drove the two last named at one time to a fraction below vesterday's closing. Eastern trunk lines were heavy and there was a demand for the metal stocks.

Northwestern increased its advance to 3 3-3. Pittsburg, C. C. & St. Louis gained 2 1-4, Western Electric 2, New York Central and Smelting 11-2. Canadian Pacific 1 3-8. Pennsylvania. Norfolk & Western and Brooklyn Transit 1. Trading eased off.

Intervals of strength and weakness prevailed in the afternoon, but the market was more inclined to go down than up. St. Paul moved erratically within a range of a point, but its periods of strength did not help the list much. Reading was sold steadily and its loss of over a point had a. effect on professional operations. Delaware & Hudson and Consolidated Gas were forced down 13-4. Illinois Central 11-4 and Wabash preferred 1. Chicago Terminal preferred improved 2.

St. Paul was llifted 2 points to 181-2 against general selling of other stocks. Meantime large amounts of Reading. Union Pacific and others were being sold at concessions of a point or more from yesterday's closing. Early material advances in a number of high grade stocks were converted into large losses. Reading broke 21-4. Anaconda 21-2 and Northern Pacific, Great Northern Pacific and Colorado Fuel 1 to 11-2.

The market closed weak.

The total sales of stocks to-day were E2,500 shares and of bonds $2,902,000. Business expanded considerably
